

Using AI?

Read this first!

Generative AI is a tool that can help you write or explain things, but it can make mistakes. Use it carefully - especially for legal issues.

Caution!

- AI is not a lawyer.
- AI may give wrong answers, even if it says it is accurate.
- AI may give advice that does not fit your case.
- Do not share personal or private information when using AI.

AI may be able to help you:

- Write drafts of letters, forms, or court papers.
- Fix grammar and improve your writing.
- Explain legal words.
- Understand steps in a court case.
- Find legal information from trusted websites.
- Organize your thoughts before talking to a lawyer.

Generative AI includes ChatGPT, Microsoft Copilot, Google Gemini, and Google AI. Google AI is what usually pops up first when you search online.

When using AI, remember:

- Make sure the court allows you to use AI.
- Double-check anything AI gives you.
- Ask AI to tell you where it found the information, and then check the sources yourself.
- Check that websites or forms are from Wisconsin and from a trusted source, like a court.
- You must make sure all court papers are correct, even if AI helped.
- Talk to a lawyer for legal help.

If you have questions about AI, how to safely use AI, or whether you can trust the information AI found for you, contact the WI State Law Library!
